eleventh floor of the Potter Building, this morning.

The proceedings grew out of a $117.50 fudgment obtained by John S. Mortimer in the District Court in a suit to recover $100 which he had wagered on Jim and put up in Brestin's hands.

Mortimer was represented by ex-Assemblyman Stein, and Breslin by Assemblyman Southworth.

Breslin admitted transferring the ownership of one gray horse to his vife in April, 1822.

Lawyer Southworth claims that his client is an ice-peddler in the employ of his wife and works on a salary.

In May, 1822. Breslin testified that he bought a gray horse. Lawyer Stein wanted to know how Breslin could have transferred to his wife in April, 1822, a gray horse which he purchased in May, 1882.
